PARADE AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS FEATURES

Today Important Day of Grand Lodge G. U. O. of O.F. Convention

TO MEET IN CARLISLE

Next State Gathering to be Held in 1915--Delegates Tendered Banquet

The crowning event of the convention of District No. 1 Grand Lodge of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, was the parade this afternoon. Headed by Col. J. W. Anderson and staff the second regiment of the Patriarch degree made an exceptionally fine appearance, as did the lower degrees of the order.

The parade formed on Fifth street and theline of march was up McKean avenue to Third street, along Third street to Fallowfield avenue, north along Fallowfield to Eighth street and along Eighth to McKean, returning along McKean.

The parade formed as follows:

Following the parade the Patriarch marched to the baseball grounds where a competitive drill is being held between the various companies for prizes to the amount of $260.

At theconvention session this morning officers were elected for the next year and the place of the next meeting was decided. Those chosen to head the organization during the next year are as follows: District Grand Master, Lewis E. Morton, of Scranton; District Deputy Grand Master, P. S. Blackwell, Steelton; Grand Secretary, J. M. Stafford, Marietta; Grand Treausurer, Joseph Binn,Philadelphia; Grand Director, R. D. Flint, Connellsville; trustee Odd Fellows home J. P. Hayden, Pittsburg. Those nominating the grand masttter were R. J. Nelson, Harrisburg and H. A.

CHURCH TO OBSERVE 135TH ANNIVERSARY

The Reboboth church a Presbyterian denomination about three miles back of Belle Vernon will observe the 135th anniversary of its organization on Thursday, Septem'er 18, with all day sessions. Rev. W. D. Ramage is the pastor of the church.

Arrangements are being made to hold three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening, with addresses to be made during each of the sessions.

COST OF FALL PRIMARY WILL BE ENORMOUS

State Will be Called Upon to Expend Between $400,000 and $500,000

MUST PAY FOR BALLOTS

People of the state who have been following the cost of primary elections the last three or four years believe that the state will be called upon to pay the heaviest bill for the primary to be held on September 16. The commonwealth pays the cost of primary elections, including pay of charges and they have been steadily growing in expensiveness.

It is the belief that the coming primary will cost between $300,000 and $400,000 to the state alone and there will be many other charges which can not be laid against the commonwealth. The primary elections in 1911 and 1912 cost $550,000. The primary of last year was the most expensive and $300,000 will probably be its total, Philadelphia, Allegheny, Beaver, Luzerne, Montgomery, Washington and Delaware being yet to be paid. The $400,000 appropriated in 1911 ran out before the bills could be met and the deficiency will be paid out of the $830,000 appropriated this year. This item is also to take care of the cost of the primaries of 1913 and 1914.

Some of the counties have already been inquiring whether the cost of enrolling the voters is to be charged against the state as a primary election charge, but it is stated at the office of the Auditor General at Harrisburg that there could be no foundation for such expense being entered against the state. Neither can any of the cost of registration in cities be charged up in the counties' bills. The cost of enrollment must be paid by the counties.

The act increasing the pay of election officers for services at all elections, primary and general from $3.50 to $5 will not affect many election officers because only those who happen to be appointed or elected since June are affected by it. Next year every election officer will get the full rate and the state will pay it for primary elections.

IMPORTANT COAL DEAL IS RUMORED; RAILROAD PLANNED

In the interest of what is thought to be Uniontown capitalists, men have been at work the past several weeks trying to get options on a considerable amount of Pittsburg vein coal in the vicinity of Ten Mile and Hackney, along North Ten Mile Creek. Several months ago an attempt was made to tie up this coal and that in the vicinity of Dunn's Station at a price ranging from $500 to $600 per acre. All was not secured at that time and the purchasing agents are again on the job. It is understood they are taking all the options at $600.

Much importance is being attached to this move on the part of the Fayette county capitalists through the fact that the coal property which they are seeking is along the line of the proposed improvement the Pennsylvania Railroad company is understood to be planning for that section. It is said a railroad is planned which will touch Dunn's Station, Conger and Ten Mile Creek territory to continue through East and West Finley townships with Wheeling as the ultimate goal.

school is truly significant of the prediction that it is going to be, it will open up an excellent coal field which has not heretofore been touched. The present activity of the Uniontown men is believed to be based on the strength of this new line and if such is the case the region adjacent thereto will be much in demand in a short time.

MONONGAHELA FACES HOTTEST POLITICAL FIGHT IN HISTORY

While Charleroi is in the midst of one of the warmest municipal elections in years, there is still another town in the vicinity which figuratively speaking has its hands full. The hottest fight that Monongahela has ever had is now under way and the political pot in Washington county's only city is not only boiling but sizzling.

In pursuance with the regulations of the new law, Monongahela is emerging from the cumbersome and burdensome councilmanic system and is entering upon the commission form of government. The old joint councils composed of twelve councilmen, six select and six common, is going to be dropped by the wayside and four men chosen to control the city government, in conjunction with themayor.

For the four places on this commission there are at present fifteen applicants, every one of which is making a determined and tireless fight. Four members of the present council, W. P. Stephens, Frank E. Frank A. Underwood and W. T. Yohe, F. A. Underwood and W. T. Gregg, seek re-election, while five ex-councilmen ask the citizens to send them back. These men are Frank B. Wickerham, John A. Smith, Frank R. Colvin, R. Eugene Byers and S. C. Markell. In addition to thsee the Socialist partty which is making rapid strides in Monongahela has four candidates in the field for council. They are J. Lenox, A. C. DeVore, Walter Wallace and Benjamin France. Together with this number John Frost and Harry H. Williams have announced their candidacy, making fifteen in number.

This is the first time the citizens of the town have ever had the opportunity to vote for councilmen at large. Heretofore each ward has elected its own representatives to council but now the bar is down and they are all in an open field and through the non-partisan ballot, with no favorites.

This makes a fight for council that has no parallel in Monongahela politics and the result is going to be watched with much interest

There is another fight in Monongahela which overshadows the contest for council. It is for the office of alderman, or justice of the peace in the Second ward. Under the old law governing third class cities there were two aldermen in each ward Under the new law, however there is but one and the election for this office will be held this year. Both the present aldermen, R. L. Elwood and A. R. Day are in the fight and it is certainly a toss up as to the outcome. They are evenly matched in every respect.

Mr. Day is a man qualified in every particular for the office and has long been conceded to be one of the best justices in the county. He is a fearless official whose oath to do his duty has ever been his rule of office. Elwood is one of the most generally liked men in the county. He has been a successful justice for a number of years and is looked upon as one of the squarest and most impartial men that ever occupied the office. Thus the fight stands between two men who balance the scales equally. There is a third man in the race. Thompson Nolder, a Democrat, but his chances are considered slim to those familiar with the situation, through the fact that the Republican that is defeated in the nomination will be for his present opponent at the general election.

The lines of batttle for the fight between Elwood and Day have been under construction for more than a year and the entire county is watching the fight for it not only carries this election but stands for political supremacy in one of the most important voting sections in Washington county.

For the effice of city controller, the present incumbent, B. L. Ross, has practically no opposition, his only rival being T. M. Beals, a Socialist candidate. The largest vote in many years is confidentially expected at Monongahela.

WANTS SCHOOL JOB IN FAYETTE COUNTY

Solomon F. Hogue, a teacher well known in Western Pennsylvania, a former county superintendent of Greene countty and with many years' experience in the school room, is an applicant for the vacancy which will occur in the county superintendency in Fayette county when C. G. Lewellyn the present county superintendent is confirmed as internal revenue collector, which is likely to be within the next few days.

The appointment will be made by Dr. N. C. Schaffer state superintendent of public instruction and will be for but eight months,or until the first Monday of June, 1914, when the man elected by the directors the May previous, will be inducted into office.

CONFUSION MAY RESULT IN REPUBLICAN VOTE

MONONGAHELA HAS EARLY CLOSING

The early closing movement for the entire year has struck Monongahela and the merchants are arranging to close their palces of business at six o'clock all year with the exception of Monday, Saturday and the days preceding holidays. On holidays they will open until ten o'clock in the morning.

Last week all the jewelry stores signed the agreement and today the meat markets completed their list. A similar petition is now in circulation among the grocers and the clothing men are considering the proposition which will result in action this week.

Margin of Extra Ballots Printed Believed to be Too Small

NO FAULT OF ESTIMATE

Condition Brought on by Unexpected Heavy Registration of G. O. P.

There is a posibility of some confusion in the event of a big Republican vote being cast in Washington county next Tuesday. This may result from the lack of a sufficient number of ballots, a contingency that it appears is not impossible.

Without counting Monongahela there are 11,140 Republicans registered in the county. The contract with the Times Publishing company of Monongahela awarded by the county commissioners calls for the printing and delivery of 11,252 official Republican ballots. Specimens of course will not countt.

By the time the Monongahela registration is figured the Republican vote will total a larger number than the number of ballots printed. Without counting the Monongahela ballots there could still be a margin of only 112 ballots. There are more than 112 precincts in the county, so that in some precincts there will be no margin at all.

Of course it is hardly to be considered that the Republican vote will run up to thetotal registrattion of Republicans but there is a risk being taken all the same. The commissioners had to let the contract according to figures secured by an early registration of voters in the countty, and they estimated as nearly as possible the number so the contingency facing the election officials and the commissioners is not to be blamed on them. It seems more to be simply the inevitableness of fate. Had the commissioners followed out what is generally understood to be the law in the letting of the contract for the ballots they would have run for short. The law is to the effect that the number of ballots to be printed for a party is to be one and one-half times the number of votes cast by the party at the previous election.

CORONER WILL INVESTIGATE NOTZ DEATH

Arranges Inquest For Man Who Was Killed by Freight Train

BODY TAKEN TO HAYS

Coroner James T. Heffran has arranged to hold an inquest Thursday evening at six o'clock in the Frye undertaking rooms into the death of Alfred Notz, aged 38, who was killed by a freight train at North Charleroi Tuesday afternoon.

Notz was employed on lock improvement work at Lock No. 4 and lived on the construction boat. Tuesday afternoon he went across the railroad track for something and about that time a southbound freight train came along. It is not known whether he attempted to board the train to come to Charleroi or whether he was just crossing but in all event he tried to get on the train. He was thrown beneath the train and his lower limbs badly mangled. He was injured internally and this caused death within a few minutes.

The body was taken in charge by Deputy Coroner Lawrence B. Frye and today was sent to his home in Hays from whence the funeral will be held on Friday.

Notz has been employed at the government lock since January. He is survived by his parents residing in Hays.

MISSION SUPERINTENDENT WILL VISIT CHARLEROI

Rev. H. C. Gleiss, superintendent of the mission work of the Pittsburg Baptist association, will be in Charleroi this evening and will speak at the regular weekly prayer service in the First Baptist church. Rev. Gleiss is a very able minister and is corresponding secretary of the Pittsburg Baptist Association.

DANCES FEATURE WEEK AT ELDORA

Dances are to be featured this week at Eldora park, with a week-end picnic to be given Saturday by the Donora band. Tonight the Knights of Columbus of Charleroi and Monessen councils combined will give their second annual dance. Last summer this event was one of the most interesting dances of the entire season at the park, and it is anticipated this year's event will be similarly interesting.

On Thursday night the Monongahela High school alumni will give a private dance having issued invitations for the event. Friday nights dance will be given by J. A. Weber, of Finleyville. The Donora band is making active preparations for the picnic of Saturday.

The park will operate one week more. Events of next week will include four dances.

AWAY WITH THE BROTHEL PLAYS

New York playgoers are long suffering, and prudishness is not one of their characteristics, but there is a limit to their tolerance, says the New York Herald. That limit has about been reached when plays exploiting the disorderly house are being produced with alarming frequency. The "crook" dramas were not so bad. At least the form of evil which they held up to the mirror was not so steeped in viciousness as that which is now being presented on the stage in New York under the guise of dramatic art. Heaven save the mark!

Brothel Play No. 2, dealing frankly with life in disreputable resorts of the most vicious kind was produced two nights ago. In it a talented American author presents the enobling spectacle of a father—a United States Senator, by the way—meeting his own daughter in a disreputable resort.

Little wonder that a young woman recently sickened after reaching the fresh air after seeing Brothel Play No. 1 and was taken home by indignant friends.

It is said that more plays of similar trend are waiting for an opening in New York. Let the managers who father them beware.

Plays of this kind are an atrocious insult to right thinking theatregoers. If they are permitted to grow and multiply ultimately they will drive decent citizens, their wives and families away from the theatre. Away with them!

HIGH SCHOOL AND BUSINESS

The instant approval meeting with the establishment of a complete commercial course in the Charleroi High school is truly significant of the trend of thought in educational affairs. It emphasizes the growing tendency to train high school young men and women in the duties that will in all probability confront them, rather than exclusively in preparatory work for college.

Comparatively few from a busy industrial community like Charleroi are fortunate enough to be enabled to attend college. Family fortunes on the whole are not so immense that parents think little of spending a few thousand dollars to give their sons and daughters the wholesome benefit of a college education. And not everyone can win a scholarship.

Hence the necessity of educating young men and young women for the life they are to lead. At Ellsworth in this county the schools have become noted through the principles adopted of training the young idea in the way it will likely shoot. Essentials are dealt with entirely. Boys are taught the methods of mining, for it is a mining community. They are taught the duties of fire boss and finally those of mine foreman. They are learned the essentials of the trade. At the same time they are trained in the rudiments of government of a mine and are still given a good insight into the affairs of the world.

While they are learning their three R's the girls are being versed in the art of housekeeping—for good housekeeping is an art. The general point is that the school authorities of Ellsworth and the very able men at the head of the school system and social-ogical work realize that these young men and young women will probably cast their lots in mining communities. They are simply preparing them for what will be their life work.

In Charleroi thesame idea might apply. Out of the 200 young men and young women enrolled in high school there are few who will have the opportunity or the means of obtaining a college education. Their education will end at the close of their high school life. They must be prepared. Surely it is not right for instance to send a young man into an office to keep books whose sole qualification lies in his ability to conjugate latin verbs. Nor is it right to expect a girl to be a good stenographer when her mind is filled with tales of mythology.

Certainly the new movement in education is significant. It is not a movement for less education, but for more and better education in the essentials.

CONVENTION FACTS

Charleroi, which has become one of the leading convention towns of the state, is observing carefully the dignity and gentlemanly bearings which has characterized the thirty-first annual convention of District No. 1, of the Grand Lodge of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows. The numerous delegates as well as the several hundred visitors in the town have made a pleasing impression on the townspeople by their exemplory conduct, and carriage.

The organization which the delegates represent is comprised of the prominent and leading members of the colored race of Pennsylvania and the representatives the various lodges have sent to Charleroi have maintained a dignity and personality commensurate with the type of men they represent.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

A few nights ago a party of Monongahela young people planned a corn roast to be held in Carroll township. In order to make the affair as enjoyable as possible they sought the assistance of a well known man, who has a reputation for his ability as a cook, particularly as a corn roast. Arrangements were made and the good things were transported to the scene of the festivity, but ere he left town the aforesaid cook proceeded to fortify himself with quite a quantity of "dream-water." By the time he reached the roasting grounds he had pretty well "lapsed into a state of innocuous desuetude."

Not much attention was paid to him until at came time for the refreshment part of the program. The chef was found reclining on the bosom of mother earth clinging affectionately and protectingly to an ear of raw corn and a print of butter. He was sound asleep.

Awakened, he betrayed some evidence of anger, and announced that he was indisposed to roast any corn but would gladly give the recipe and instructions as a substitute.

"Allright, let's have them," impatiently demanded one of the crowd.

The chef closed his eyes and with an effort turned over, to give the directions:

"Roast the corn for 20 minutes, bake the potatoes 'till they're done, cook the chicken 'till-'till-ah-goose's cooked."

A good story is told in which a well known young man plays the important part. Some few evenings ago he entered a local place of business slightly the worse for wear and proceeded to declare himself to the assemblage.

"I can lick any man in the house," he said.

Seemingly they all believed it for no one replied to his declaration.

"I can lick any man in this town" he declared.

No person paid any attention to him. He was just spoiling for a fuss and thought he'd go them one better.

"I can lick any fighting man in this county" he announced.

The spectators were rapidly getting tired of this boastfulness and finally the annoying one jumped to a chair and swinging his fist wildly in the air, and roared.

"I can lick any man in this state."

Just then one of the bystanders reached up and gave him a resounding slap across the face which precipitated him to the floor. He got up, carefully brushed his clothes, rubbed the bruised spot a moment and limped to the door.

"Excuse me! I guess I took in too much territory that time," he said.

WILL PROCURE AGRICULTURAL DATA IN STATE

Pennsylvania's new bureau of agricultural statistics, provided for by the last legislature, is to obtain its information regarding the number of farmers, farms and cattle and area of cultivated and wooded land the variety and value of crops direct from the counties of the state.

The new bureau is just being organized and arrangements have been made to secure from the commissioners of the counties the names of all farmers and their holdings as returned by assessors and then steps to obtain the data required to maintain the bureau will be taken.

It is the idea to establish the bureau on as comprehensive a scale for agriculture and its allied industries as the state bureau of industrial statistics, which has been operated for years. There are lists of all owners of creameries, stallions and orchards but none of farmers or anything showing the extent and value of crops compiled officially.

IDENTITY ALIVE IN DEATH SAYS REV. ZAHNIZER

"Death does not destroy conscious existence nor does it destroy personal identity," Evangelist A. D. Zahniser declared Tuesday evening at the tent services being conducted on the play grounds by the Free Methodists of Charleroi and vicinity. "There is a future for all," hestated, "and the wicked and the righteous shall know each other there for memory is to be retained Death is only to remove the christian from conditions conducive to sorrow and to separate the wicked from the pleasure of pride. Death does not change character and our deeds of earth will be known in the world that is to come."

Zahniser took for his subject, "What death does and does not do for us." taking his text from Luke 16; 19-31.

In his talk he stated: "There is not a single chapter in the Bible that states that there is a change of character after death. What we have to do we must do here and now. It is impossible to change the influence after death."

LOCAL COUPLE ARE WEDDED AT CHURCH

At St. Jerome's Catholic church this morning at 9 o'clock Miss Clara Koller, of Charleroi and Patrick O'Rourke, of Charleroi, were married. Their attendants were Miss Mary Koller, a sister of the bride, and Francis O'Rourke, a brother of the groom. They are not anticipating taking any wedding trip at the present time, but will go to housekeeping in Charleroi.

LINEMAN MEETS DEATH THROUGH ELECTROCUTION

Death was almost instantaneous for William Everett Anderson a well known young man of McDonald, when he fell across an electric wire at Midway Tuesday. He was employed by the West Penn company and was on a pole repairing a line when he lost his balance and started to fall. In an effort to save himself he grabbed a live wire and 6,600 bolts of electricity passed through his body. He fell tto the ground and in his downward flight struck William Babble another workman who was on the pole beneath him. He also fell sustaining a severe injury to his left leg. Anderson died within ten minutes after the accident.

Anderson was well known throughout that section and is survived by his widow and one daughter. He was a Mason, and this body is arranging for the funeral.

DANGEROUS OPEN GRATE GETS ITS FIRST VICTIM

What is thought to be the first accident of the fall season from an open grate occurred at Cecil Tuesday when the 14-year old child of a Greek family was burned to death when her clothing came in contact with an open fire.

FOR BURGESS

To the Voters of Charleroi:

At the primary election on Tuesday, September 16, 1913, I will be a candidate for burgess on the Democratic ticket. I have been a taxpayer in Charleroi and North Charleroi boroughs for fifteen years, and a consistent voter of the Democratic political faith. In casting your vote at the coming primary election, kindly give me a little consideration with the rest of the candidates.

Respectfully,

S. L. Woodward

FOR TAX COLLECTOR

To the Voters of Charleroi:

At the primary election to take place on Tuesday, September 16, I will be a candidate on the Washington Party Ticket for the office of Tax Collector. As accountant I have had 10 years experience, and as auditor of borough finances for two years, I have become familiar with the work of tax collecting. I am a property holder and tax payer and alive to the interests of the borough. In casting your vote at the primary election, I ask your kindly consideration.

"That Million Dollar Look!"

Go and See This Wonderful Photo-Play to Appear at The Palace Theatre, Charleroi, Thursday and Friday, September 11th and 12th

At my own private and personal expense, I have brought to this town one of the greatest picture-plays that has ever been produced.

For years, I have been waiting for some book ,or play, or sermon that would make clear the powerful lesson that this picture shows.. It is a lesson that means greater success—business success, social success, personal success to every man who will take it home to himself—and apply it in his daily living.

I brought this picture to The Palace because I believe that every red-corpuscled American man who sees it can reap a profit from it—and become a bigger man through it—and I want to do my share to get it before as many folks right here at home as I can.. It's helped me—and I want you to enjoy its help too.

I am not going to spoil your enjoyment, your "thrill" and excitement by telling you here what the story is.. Wait and enjoy the surprise for yourself.

I'm simply going to go on record with the statement that it will grip you from the first exposure to the last scene—and make you say a hundred times "Why wasn't this picture ever thought of before?"

Men have lost untold opportunities,have sacrificed dearest ambitions; have handicapped hopes of years, purely and solely through a lack of knowledge that this picture vividly and dramatically imparts.

Men have euchred themselves out of big business gains, have closed the doors to countless success chances, have defeated themselves, not only in business, but in pilitics, in society—YES, EVEN IN LOVE—because they never studied and mastered the lesson that this picture makes clear to them.

If you want to play the game of success skillfully and victoriously; if you want to be a dominating factor in life's power circles—

Then don't fail to see "That Million Dollar Look" at The Palace Theatre.

ONCE ENOUGH FOR PARROT

Bird's Tour of Discovery Forced Stoppage of Mill, but It Taught Him Wisdom.

The sixty-odd thousand spindles of the Sharp Mill at New Bedford, Mass., suddenly ceased to whirl the other day and 650 operatives sat idle at their machines. And it was all the fault of Jimmie, a parrot, the mascot of the engine room.

Jimmy is the pet not only of the engine room, but of the whole mill from Agent Robert Schofield down. It's "Hello, Jimmie" from all who enter the engine room on any errand, and Jimmie comes back with his cordial "Hello."

It was this noisy bird that shut down the mill. Whether the hum of the big rope drive became to him suddenly the murmur of south winds in tropical trees, or whether mere caprice lured him, he flew right up among the rushing ropes and rapidly revolving pulleys. The engineer saw him mount, but it was too late to stop him. And so off went the steam, production or no production, and the engine room force rushed to see what had become of Jimmie.

He had been hurled over the top of the big pulley to the floor below. They found him there, ruffled of wings, badly shaken up, and still dazed from his rough adventure, but physically uninjured. And every one gave thanks, as the mascot was borne back to his perch at the other end of the room, with the admonition never to try it again.

Jimmie, indeed, from that hour became a saddler and wiser bird. He has not tried the experience again; consequently the mill's sixty thousand spindles have revolved throughout the days without interruption. That one meeting with the whirling ropes was enough for the parrot.

Jimmie, however, condescended to descend from his perch again one day, when a cat, whose rightful residence is in the basement under the engine room, ventured within the parrot's domain. Jimmie evidently believes that in him alone is vested the right to act as mascot of the engine room. He drove the cat on the run.

Jimmie is the property of Mr. Sharp himself, and was brought by him to the mill. He is a macaw and observes the fashions of his species by having a very long tail and a strong, hooked bill. His plumage is brilliant. His original home was South America. Like other inhabitants of that part of the world, he is a revolutionist. His invasion of the region of belts and pulleys stopped the mill. The intrusion of the cat caused her ignoble retreat.

He is as polished in his manners as a Spaniard, and as flighty in his temper as a Venezuelan insurrectionist. He is, in fine, of the south, polite, hot tempered, sporting gorgeous raiment, and fearless of death.

Presence of Mind.

An Englishman in traveling through Ceylon was the guest of a dockyard official at Trincomalee.

"The dinner was excellent," he says, "but when it was about half over I was startled by hearing the wife of my host tell the native servant to place a bowl of milk on a deer-skin near her chair.

"Although she spoke as calmly as if giving an ordinary order, I knew at once there was a snake somewhere in the room, for they prefer milk to anything else. As a hasty movement might have meant certain death, we all sat like statues; but, for all that, my eyes were inspecting every nook and corner, with a peep under the table. However, it was not until the milk was placed on the deer-skin that the snake appeared. And then, to our amazement, a large cobra uncoiled itself from my hostess's ankle and glided towards the bowl, when, of ccurse, it was immediately killed.

"But just fancy the nerve of the woman, though she fainted when the thing lay dead on the floor. How many could have remained motionless in such circumstances?"

Tamed by a Threat.

"I will," she exclaimed— "I will not live with you another day!"

"You'll leave me, will you?" he calmly asked.

"Yes, I will."

"When?"

"Now—this minute!"

"I wouldn't, if I were you."

"But I will, and I defy you to stop me!"

"Oh, I sha'n't try to stop you," he quietly replied. "I will simply report to the police that my wife has mysteriously disappeared. They'll want your description, and I will give it. You wear No. 8 shoes; you have an extra large mouth; your nose turns up at the end; eyes rather on the glint; voice like a—"

"Wretch, you wouldn't dare do that?" she screamed.

"I will."

They glared at each other for a moment in silence. Then it was plain to see who was the victor.

Brave Fire Laddies.

A local automobile factory has a well-drilled fire corps, composed of factory employees. The corps had a chance to demonstrate its ability when a neighboring factory building burned.

The captain of the factory fire company called his men together after they had grabbed what they thought were fire extinguishers. As he started to give the order to turn the extinguishers on the roof, where some sparks from the neighboring fire had fallen, it was discovered every man was armed with a gas tank like those used in automobiles.

Until a short time ago, scarcely one person in a thousand had ever tasted a really good soda cracker—as it came fresh and crisp from the oven.

Now everybody can know and enjoy the crisp goodness of fresh baked soda crackers without going to the baker's oven.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS ADOPT NEW STYLE

With the summer straw passing into the discard and with incidental dissatisfaction and indecision existing over the proper kind of fall lid, high school boys have adopted a new fashion the saving grace of which is that it does not look as bad as it might. The new style from the Fifth street fashion center is no hat at all. Whereas the tall stovepipe looking tiny brimmed ultra fashionable fall affair makes some fellows look like a cross between a full moon on a crank and a bandmaster for a political parade and whereas the freakish wide brimmed dice makes most fellows look like Bowery merchants, the high school boys have figured it is up to them to set their own natural style. Next week will be the last for the summer straw and the man or boy who is seen with a panama of a board thatchpiece after that is just as like as not to get into embarrassing situations.

SENATOR PENROSE WILL TAKE TOUR

Senator Penrose will begin his tour of county fairs this week. He will be at Reading next Wednesday and at Port Royal on Thursday. On Friday he will visit Westmoreland county, speaking at Youngwood. The following week he is to speak at Punxsutawney and will later visit Gratz, Centre Hall and Carlisle fairs. It is believed that the Senator plans some other visits in October.

PROVERBS MOSTLY OLD

MAJORITY HAVE BEEN HANDED DOWN FOR CENTURIES.

Same Meaning Is Expressed In Varying Phrases Among Different Nations—Comments on Luck Are Most Expressive.

Many proverbs have come down to us from remote ages, and are common to all nations.

It is said that a king of Samos worked his slaves nearly to death in making a vineyard. This provoked one of them to prophesy that his master would never drink the wine. The king, being told of this, when the first grapes were produced took a handful, and, pressing the juice into a cup in the presence of the slave, derided him as a false prophet. "Many things happen between the cup and the lip," the slave replied.

Just then a shout was heard that a wild boar had broken into the vineyard. The king, without tasting, set down the cup, ran to meet it, and was killed in the encounter. Henceforth the words of the slave passed into a proverb.

From this Greek original came two French proverbs: "Between the hand and the mouth the soup is often spilt," and "Wine poured out is not swallowed." Neither is so near the original as our English, "There's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip."

It is curious to trace how similar ideas have taken root in different languages and the various modes of illustrating the same thought. For instance, one or two familiar proverbs in our own language. We say, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." The same idea is expressed by Italians when they say, "Better an egg today than a pullet tomorrow," and the French proverb is still more significant, "One here-it-is is better than two youshall-have-its." "Better a leveret in the kitchen than a wild boar in the forest," is the Livonian saying, conveying the same meaning.

The proverbs on luck are numerous and expressive in all languages. In English we say, "It is better to be born lucky than rich." The Arabs convey the same idea in the apt proverb, "Throw him into the Nile and he will come up with a fish in his mouth," while the German says, "If he flung a penny on the roof a dollar would come back to him."

A Spanish proverb says, "God send you luck, my son, and little wit will serve you." There is a Latin adage, "Fortune favors fools," and it is to this Touchstone alludes in his reply to Jacques, "Call me not a fool till heaven hath sent me fortune."

The Germans say, "Jack gets on by his stupidity" and "Fortune and women are fond of fools." There is also a Latin proverb which shows that the converse of this holds good: "Fortune makes a fool of him whom she too much favors."

Some unlucky Englishman is responsible for the saying: "If my father had made me a hatter, when would have been born without heads," but this can scarcely be called original, as an unfortunate Arab, ages ago, declared, "If I were to trade in winding sheets no one would die."

"Misfortunes seldom come singly," has many equivalents in all languages. The Spaniards say, "Welcome, misfortune, if thou comest alone," and "Whither goest thou, misfortune? To where there is more?"

Called Halt on Lawyer.

Laura Hamilton tells of a funny courtroom episode which she saw one day while playing in the south some time ago.

A young lawyer had been appointed by the court to defend a man charged with larceny. In his argument to the jury he pleaded for the acquittal of his client. He told of his innocent boyhood days, of his good character, of his father, mother and brothers. In short, he launched forth into a family history.

The prisoner, an old darky, had listened with growing uneasiness to his counsel's plea, and as the attorney went on without a hint of stopping, the negro was driven to desperation. Jumping to his feet, he yelled to the court:

"I's guilty, yo' honah; I's guilty! De jury can't do no moh dan send me to jail fo' six months, but if dat fool lawyer doan stop, dey'll hang me fo' suah!"

Identified.

The two American war correspondents were gazing at the conflict when Kinkletop caught sight of a gallant officer leading a charge.

"His face is strangely familiar," he said. "That Greek lieutenant, I mean—"

"Yes," said Blithers. "He used to run the boot-blacking stand in that barber shop over on Steenth avenue and Umtr-iph street."

And just then the noble warrior dashed madly past, and, forgetting himself under the excitement of the moment, turned and cried aloud to his advancing troops:

"Next! Shine!"

And the indomitable phalanx moved steadily up the hill, giving the enemy the worst polishing-off they had had since war was declared.—Harper's Weekly.

Strenuous Oratory.

Caller—What's all that pounding in the back room?

M. P.'s Office Boy—Dunno! I heard the boss say he'd got to frame a speech, and I guess he's doin' it.—

A Physician's Faith in Tuberculosis Medicine

"Have used Eckman's Alterative in several cases of tubercular glands of the neck, with excellent results every time. In one case it cost me $50. for the girl was put on it only until she could arrange to be operated, and in a short time an operation was not needed. I suppose your records are just as fine as of old. You know my faith in it." (Original of this physician's letter on file.)

Eckman's Alterative is effective in other forms. Read what Mrs. Garvin says:—

Idaho Falls, Idaho.

"Gentlemen: I have gained twenty-two pounds since last February and my baby is in perfect health. I have been waiting since she was born to see how I would get along. I am now doing all my work, have been ever since she was four weeks old, and I am steadily gaining. I do not cough or raise anything at all. I believe my lung trouble is cured."

(Sworn Affidavit) MRS. M. H. GARVIN.

Note—Mrs. Garvin has seven children.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever; Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. According to Mr. Foster the contract for the road will be let within a comparatively short time.

ACCIDENTS HAPPEN FROM TIGHT SKIRTS

The Pennsylvania railroad company has sent out notices to the effect that hereafter it will not be responsible for accidents due to women's dresses and adornment. Hobble skirts, high heeled shoes and freakish apparel have been responsible for a number of accidents according to the railroad's recent notice, especially of falls down station stairs and in boarding cars.

A number of notices have been issued by the company relative to the danger of high heeled shoes and tight skirts in traveling and with each of these accounts of the accidents caused by such apparel have been published. The last notice comes as an ultimatum. The company announces further that it will publish the names, ages and addresses of women who are injured through unsuitable clothing.

PARADE AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS FEATURES

TO MEET IN CARLISLE

Next State Gathering to be Held in 1915--Delegates Tendered Banquet

The crowning event of the convention of District No. 1 Grand Lodge of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, was the parade this afternoon. Headed by Col. J. W. Anderson and staff the second regiment of the Patriarch degree made an exceptionally fine appearance, as did the lower degrees of the order.

The parade formed on Fifth street and theline of march was up McKean avenue to Third street, along Third street to Fallowfield avenue, north along Fallowfield to Eighth street and along Eighth to McKean, returning along McKean.

The parade formed as follows:

Following the parade the Patriarch marched to the baseball grounds where a competitive drill is being held between the various companies for prizes to the amount of $200.

At theconvention session this morning officers were elected for the next year and the place of the next meeting was decided. Those chosen to head the organization during the next year are as follows: District Grand Master, Lewis E. Morton, of Scranton; District Deputy Grand Master, P. S. Blackwell, Steelton; Grand Secretary, J. M. Stafford, Marietta; Grand Treausurer, Joseph Binn,Philadelphia; Grand Director, R. D. Flint, Connellsville; trustee Odd Fellows home J. P. Hayden, Pittsburg. Those nominating the grand masttter were R. J. Nelson, Harrisburg and H. A.

COST OF FALL PRIMARY WILL BE ENORMOUS

State Will be Called Upon to Expend Between $400,000 and $500,000

MUST PAY FOR BALLOTS

People of the state who have been following the cost of primary elections the last three or four years believe that the state will be called upon to pay the heaviest bill for the primary to be held on September 16. The commonwealth pays the cost of primary elections, including pay of charges and they have been steadily growing in expensiveness.

It is the belief that the coming primary will cost between $300,000 and $400,000 to the state alone and there will be many other charges which can not be laid against the commonwealth. The primary elections in 1911 and 1912 cost $550,000. The primary of last year was the most expensive and $300,000 will probably be its total, Philadelphia, Allegheny, Beaver. Luzerne. Montgomery. Washington and Delaware being yet to be paid. The $400,000 appropriated in 1911 ran out before the bills could be met and the deficiency will be paid out of the $880,000 appropriated this year. This item is also to take care of the cost of the primaries of 1913 and 1914.

Some of the counties have already been inquiring whether the cost of enrolling the voters is to be charged against the state as a primary election charge, but it is stated at the office of the Auditor General at Harrisburg that there could be no foundation for such expense being entered against the state. Neither can any of the cost of registration in cities be charged up in the counties' bills. The cost of enrollment must be paid by the counties.

The act increasing the pay of election officers for services at all elections, primary and general from $3.50 to $5 will not affect many election officers because only those who happen to be appointed or elected since June are affected by it. Next year every election officer will get the full rate and the state will pay it for primary elections.

IMPORTANT COAL DEAL IS RUMORED; RAILROAD PLANNED

In the interest of what is thought to be Uniontown capitalists, men have been at work the past several weeks trying to get options on a considerable amount of Pittsburg vein coal in the vicinity of Ten Mile and Hackney, along North Ten Mile Creek. Several months ago an attempt was made to tie up this coal and that in the vicinity of Dunn's Station at a price ranging from $500 to $600 per acre. All was not secured at that time and the purchasing agents are again on the job. It is understood they are taking all the options at $600.

Much importance is being attached to this move on the part of the Fayette county capitalists through the fact that the coal property which they are seeking is along the line of the proposed improvement the Pennsylvania Railroad company is understood to be planning for that section. It is said a railroad is planned which will touch Dunn's Station, Conger and Ten Mile Creek territory to continue through East and West Finley townships with Wheeling as the ultimate goal.

school is truly significant of the prediction that it is going to be, it will open up an excellent coal field which has not heretofore been touched. The present activity of the Uniontown men is believed to be based on the strength of this new line and if such is the case the region adjacent thereto will be much in demand in a short time.

MONONGAHELA FACES HOTTEST POLITICAL FIGHT IN HISTORY

While Charleroi is in the midst of one of the warmest municipal elections in years, there is still another town in the vicinity which figuratively speaking has its hands full. The hottest fight that Monongahela has ever had is now under way and the political pot in Washington county's only city is not only boiling but sizzling.

In pursuance with the regulations of the new law, Monongahela is emerging from the cumbersome and burdensome councilmanic system and is entering upon the commission form of government. The old joint councils composed of twelve councilmen, six select and six common, is going to be dropped by the wayside and four men chosen to control the city government, in conjunction with themayor.

For the four places on this commission there are at present fifteen applicants, every one of which is making a determined and tireless fight. Four members of the present council, W. P. Stephens, Frank E. Frank A. Underwood and W. T. Yohe, F. A. Underwood and W. T. Gregg, seek re-election, while five ex-councilmen ask the citizens to send them back. These men are Frank B. Wickerham, John A. Smith, Frank R. Colvin, R. Eugene Byers and S. C. Markell. In addition to thsee the Socialist partty which is making rapid strides in Monongahela has four candidates in the field for council. They are J. Lenox, A. C. DeVore, Walter Wallace and Benjamin France. Together with this number John Frost and Harry H. Williams have announced their candidacy, making fifteen in number.

This is the first time the citizens of the town have ever had the opportunity to vote for councilmen at large. Heretofore each ward has elected its own representatives to council but now the bar is down and they are all in an open field and through the non-partisan ballot, with no favorites.

This makes a fight for council that has no parallel in Monongahela politics and the result is going to be watched with much interest.

There is another fight in Monongahela which overshadows the contest for council. It is for the office of alderman, or justice of the peace in the Second ward. Under the old law governing third class cities there were two aldermen in each ward. Under the new law, however there is but one and the election for this office will be held this year. Both the present aldermen, R. L. Elwood and A. R. Day are in the fight and it is certainly a toss up as to the outcome. They are evenly matched in every respect.

Mr. Day is a man qualified in every particular for the office and has long been conceded to be one of the best justices in the county. He is a fearless official whose oath to do his duty has ever been his rule of office. Elwood is one of the most generally liked men in the county. He has been a successful justice for a number of years and is looked upon as one of the squarest and most impartial men that ever occupied the office. Thus the fight stands between two men who balance the scales equally. There is a third man in the race, Thompson Nolder, a Democrat, but his chances are considered slim to those familiar with the situation, through the fact that the Republican that is defeated in the nomination will be for his present opponent at the general election.

The lines of batttle for the fight between Elwood and Day have been under construction for more than a year and the entire county is watching the fight for it not only carries this election but stands for political supremacy in one of the most important voting sections in Washington county.

For the effice of city controller, the present incumbent, B. L. Ross, has practically no opposition, his only rival being T. M. Beals, a Socialist candidate. The largest vote in many years is confidentally expected at Monongahela.

WANTS SCHOOL JOB IN FAYETTE COUNTY

Solomon F. Hogue, a teacher well known in Western Pennsylvania, a former county superintendent of Greene countty and with many years' experience in the school room, is an applicant for the vacancy which will occur in the county superintendency in Fayette county when C. G. Lewellyn the present county superintendent is confirmed as internal revenue collector, which is likely to be within the next few days.

The appointment will be made by Dr. N. C. Schaffer state superintendent of public instruction and will be for but eight months,or until the first Monday of June, 1914, when the man elected by the directors the May previous, will be inducted into office.

CONFUSION MAY RESULT IN REPUBLICAN VOTE

MONONGAHELA HAS EARLY CLOSING

The early closing movement for the entire year has struck Monongahela and the merchants are arranging to close their palces of business at six o'clock all year with the exception of Monday, Saturday and the days preceding holidays. On holidays they will open until ten o'clock in the morning.

Last week all the jewelry stores signed the agreement and today the meat markets completed their list. A similar petition is now in circulation among the grocers and the clothing men are considering the proposition which will result in action this week.

CORONER WILL INVESTIGATE NOTZ DEATH

Arranges Inquest For Man Who Was Killed by Freight Train

BODY TAKEN TO HAYS

Coroner James T. Heffran has arranged to hold an inquest Thursday evening at six o'clock in the Frye undertaking rooms into the death of Alfred Notz, aged 38, who was killed by a freight train at North Charleroi Tuesday afternoon.

Notz was employed on lock improvement work at Lock No. 4 and lived on the construction boat. Tuesday afternoon he went across the railroad track for something and about that time a southbound freight train came along. It is not known whether he attempted to board the train to come to Charleroi or whether he was just crossing but in all event he tried to get on the train. He was thrown beneath the train and his lower limbs badly mangled. He was injured internally and this caused death within a few minutes.

The body was taken in charge by Deputy Coroner Lawrence B. Frye and today was sent to his home in Hays from whence the funeral will be held on Friday.

Notz has been employed at the government lock since January. He is survived by his parents residing in Hays.

MISSION SUPERINTENDENT WILL VISIT CHARLEROI

Rev. H. C. Gleiss, superintendent of the mission work of the Pittsburg Baptist association, will be in Charleroi this evening and will speak at the regular weekly prayer service in the First Baptist church. Rev. Gleiss is a very able minister and is corresponding secretary of the Pittsburg Baptist Association.

Margin of Extra Ballots Printed Believed to be Too Small

NO FAULT OF ESTIMATE

Condition Brought on by Unexpected Heavy Registration of G. O. P.

There is a possibility of some confusion in the event of a big Republican vote being cast in Washington county next Tuesday. This may result from the lack of a sufficient number of ballots, a contingency that it appears is not impossible.

Without counting Monongahela there are 11,140 Republicans registered in the county. The contract with the Times Publishing company of Monongahela awarded by the county commissioners calls for the printing and delivery of 11,252 official Republican ballots. Specimens of course will not countt.

By the time the Monongahela registration is figured the Republican vote will total a larger number than the number of ballots printed. Without counting the Monongahela ballots there could still be a margin of only 112 ballots. There are more than 112 precincts in the county, so that in some precincts there will be no margin at all.

Of course it is hardly to be considered that the Republican vote will run up to thetotal registrattion of Republicans but there is a risk being taken all the same. The commissioners had to let the contract according to figures secured by an early registration of voters in the county, and they estimated as nearly as possible the number so the contingency facing the election officials and the commissioners is not to be blamed on them. It seems more to be simply the inevitableness of fate. Had the commissioners followed out what is generally understood to be the law in the letting of the contract for the ballots they would have run for short. The law is to the effect that the number of ballots to be printed for a party is to be one and one-half times the number of votes cast by the party at the previous election.

DANCES FEATURE WEEK AT ELDORA

Dances are to be featured this week at Eldora park, with a week-end picnic to be given Saturday by the Donora band. Tonight the Knights of Columbus of Charleroi and Monessen councils combined will give their second annual dance. Last summer this event was one of the most interesting dances of the entire season at the park, and it is anticipated this year's event will be similarly interesting.

On Thursday night the Monongahela High school alumni will give a private dance having issued invitations for the event. Friday nights dance will be given by J. A. Weber, of Finleyville. The Donora band is making active preparations for the picnic of Saturday.

The park will operate one week more. Events of next week will include four dances.

AWAY WITH THE BROTHEL PLAYS

New York playgoers are long suffering, and prudishness is not one of their characteristics, but there is a limit to their tolerance, says the New York Herald. That limit has about been reached when plays exploiting the disorderly house are being produced with alarming frequency. The "crook" dramas were not so bad. At least the form of evil which they held up to the mirror was not so steeped in viciousness as that which is now being presented on the stage in New York under the guise of dramatic art. Heaven save the mark!

Brothel Play No. 2, dealing frankly with life in disreputable resorts of the most vicious kind was produced two nights ago. In it a talented American author presents the enobling spectacle of a father—a United States Senator, by the way—meeting his own daughter in a disreputable resort.

Little wonder that a young woman recently sickened after reaching the fresh air after seeing Brothel Play No. 1 and was taken home by indignant friends.

It is said that more plays of similar trend are waiting for an opening in New York. Let the managers who father them beware.

Plays of this kind are an atrocious insult to right thinking theatregoers. If they are permitted to grow and multiply ultimately they will drive decent citizens, their wives and families away from the theatre. Away with them!

HIGH SCHOOL AND BUSINESS

The instant approval meeting with the establishment of a complete commercial course in the Charleroi High school is truly significant of the trend of thought in educational affairs. It emphasizes the growing tendency to train high school young men and women in the duties that will in all probability confront them, rather than exclusively in preparatory work for college.

Comparatively few from a busy [illegible] Charleroi [illegible] to be enabled to [illegible] few thousand dollars to give their sons and daughters the wholesome benefit of a college education. And not everyone can win a scholarship.

Hence the necessity of educating young men and young women for the life they are to lead. At Ellsworth in this county the schools have become noted through the principles adopted of training the young idea in the way it will likely shoot. Essentials are dealt with entirely. Boys are taught the methods of mining, for it is a mining community. They are taught the duties of fire boss and finally those of mine foreman. They are learned the essentials of the trade. At the same time they are trained in the rudiments of government of a mine and are still given a good insight into the affairs of the world.

While they are learning their three r's the girls are being versed in the art of housekeeping—for good housekeeping is an art. The general point is that the school authorities of Ellsworth and the very able men at the head of the school system and social-ized work realize that these young men and young women will probably cast their lots in mining communities. They are simply preparing them for what will be their life work.

In Charleroi thesame idea might apply. Out of the 200 young men and young women enrolled in high school there are few who will have the opportunity or the means of obtaining a college education. Their education will end at the close of their high school life. They must be prepared. Surely it is not right nor just to send a young man into an office to keep books whose sole qualification lies in his ability to conjugate latin verbs. Nor is it right to expect a girl to be a good stenographer when her mind is filled with tales of mythology.

Certainly the new movement in education is significant. It is not a movement for less education, but for more and better education in the essentials.

CONVENTION FACTS

Charleroi, which has become one of the leading convention towns of the state, is observing carefully the dignity and gentlemanly bearings which has characterized the thirty-first annual convention of District No. 1, of the Grand Lodge of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows. The numerous delegates as well as the several hundred visitors in the town have made a pleasing impression on the townspeople by their exemplory conduct, and carriage.

The organization which the delegates represent is comprised of the prominent and leading members of the colored race of Pennsylvania and the representatives the various lodges have sent to Charleroi have maintained a dignity and personality commensurate with the type of men they represent.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

A few nights ago a party of Monongahela young people planned a corn roast to be held in Carroll township. In order to make the affair as enjoyable as possible they sought the assistance of a well known man, who has a reputation for his ability as a cook, particularly as a corn roast. Arrangements were made and the good things were transported to the scene of the festivity, but ere he left town the aforesaid cook proceeded to fortify himself with quite a quantity of "dream-water." By the time he reached the roasting grounds he had pretty well "lapsed into a state of innocuous desuetude."

Not much attention was paid to him until at came time for the refreshment part of the program. The chef was found reclining on the bosom of mother earth clinging affectionately and protectingly to an ear of raw corn and a print of butter. He was sound asleep.

Awakened, he betrayed some evidence of anger, and announced that he was indisposed to roast any corn but would gladly give the recipe and instructions as a substitute.

"Aahgwat, let's have them," impatiently demanded one of the crowd.

The chef closed his eyes and with an effort turned over, to give the [illegible] corn for 20 minutes, [illegible] cook the chicken 'till-'till-ah-goose's cooked."

A good story is told in which a well known young man plays the important part. Some few evenings ago he entered a local place of business slightly the worse for wear and proceeded to declare himself to the assemblage.

"I can lick any man in the house," he said.

Seemingly they all believed it for no one replied to his declaration.

"I can lick any man in this town" he declared.

No person paid any attention to him. He was just spoiling for a fuss and thought he'd go them one better.

"I can lick any fighting man in this county" he announced.

The spectators were rapidly getting tired of this boastfulness and finally the annoying one jumped to a chair and swinging his fist wildly in the air, and roared.

"I can lick any man in this state."

Just then one of the bystanders reached up and gave him a resounding slap across the face which precipitated him to the floor. He got up, carefully brushed his clothes, rubbed the bruised spot a moment and limped to the door.

"Excuse me! I guess I took it too [illegible] time," he said.

WILL PROCURE AGRICULTURAL DATA IN STATE

Pennsylvania's new bureau of agricultural statistics, provided for by the last legislature, is to obtain its information regarding the number of farmers, farms and cattle and area of cultivated and wooded land the variety and value of crops direct from the counties of the state.

The new bureau is just being organized and arrangements have been made to secure from the commissioners of the counties the names of all farmers and their holdings as returned by assessors and then steps to obtain the data required to maintain the bureau will be taken.

It is the idea to establish the bureau on as comprehensive a scale for agriculture and its allied industries as the state bureau of industrial statistics, which has been operated for years. Thre are lists of all owners of creameries, stallions and orchards but none of farmers or anything showing the extent and value of crop compiled officially.

IDENTITY ALIVE IN DEATH SAYS REV. ZAHNIZER

"Death does not destroy conscious existence, nor does it destroy personal identity," Evangelist A. D. Zahniser declared Tuesday evening at the tent services being conducted on the play grounds by the Free Methodists of Charleroi and vicinity. "There is a future for all," hestated, "and the wicked and the righteous shall know each other there for memory is to be retained Death is only to remove the christian from conditions conducive to sorrow and to separate the wicked from the pleasure of pride. Death does not change character and [illegible] the world that is to come."

Zahniser took for his subject, "What death does and does not do for us." taking his text from Luke 16; 19-31.

In his talk he stated: "There is not a single chapter in the Bible that states that there is a change of character after death. What we have to do we must do here and now. It is impossible to change the influence after death."

They are not anticipating taking any wedding trip at the present time, but will go to housekeeping in Charleroi.

LINEMAN MEETS DEATH THROUGH ELECTROCUTION

Death was almost instantaneous for William Everett Anderson a well known young man of McDonald, when he fell across an electric wire at Midway Tuesday. He was employed by the West Penn company and was on a pole repairing a line when he lost his balance and started to fall. In an effort to save himself he grabbed a live wire and 6,600 bolts of electricity passed through his body. He fell tto the ground and in his downward flight struck William Babbie another workman who was on the pole beneath him. He also fell sustaining a severe injury to his left leg. Anderson died within ten minutes after the accident.

Anderson was well known throughout that section and is survived by his widow and one daughter. He was a Mason, and this body is arranging for the funeral.

"That Million Dollar Look!"

Go and See This Wonderful Photo-Play to Appear at The Palace Theatre, Charleroi, Thursday and Friday, September 11th and 12th

At my own private and personal expense, I have brought to this town one of the greatest picture-plays that has ever been produced.

For years, I have been waiting for some book or play, or sermon that would make clear the powerful lesson that this picture shows.. It is a lesson that means greater success—business success, social success, personal success to every man who will take it home to himself—and apply it in his daily living.

I brought this picture to The Palace because I believe that every red-corpuscled American man who sees it can reap a profit from it—and become a bigger man through it—and I want to do my share to get it before as many folks right here at home as I can.. It's helped me—and I want you to enjoy its help too.

I am not going to spoil your enjoyment, your "thrill" and excitement by telling you here what the story is.. Wait and enjoy the surprise for yourself.

I'm simply going to go on record with the statement that it will grip you from the first exposure to the last scene—and make you say a hundred times "Why wasn't this picture ever thought of before?"

Men have lost untold opportunities, have sacrificed dearest ambitions; have handicapped hopes of years, purely and solely through a lack of knowledge that this picture vividly and dramatically imparts.

Men have euchred themselves out of big business gains, have closed the doors to countless success chances, have defeated themselves, not only in business, but in pilitics, in society—YES, EVEN IN LOVE—because they never studied and mastered the lesson that this picture makes clear to them.

If you want to play the game of success skillfully and victoriously; if you want to be a dominating factor in life's power circles—

Then don't fail to see "That Million Dollar Look" at The Palace Theatre.

ONCE ENOUGH FOR PARROT

Bird's Tour of Discovery Forced Stoppage of Mill, but It Taught Him Wisdom.

The sixty-odd thousand spindles of the Sharp Mill at New Bedford, Mass., suddenly ceased to whirl the other day and 650 operatives sat idle at their machines. And it was all the fault of Jimmie, a parrot, the mascot of the engine room.

Jimmy is the pet not only of the engine room, but of the whole mill, from Agent Robert Schofield down. It's "Hello, Jimmie" from all who enter the engine room on any errand, and Jimmie comes back with his cordial "Hello."

It was this noisy bird that shut down the mill. Whether the hum of the big rope drive became to him suddenly the murmur of south winds in tropical trees, or whether mere caprice lured him, he flew right up among the rushing ropes and rapidly revolving pulleys. The engineer saw him mount, but it was too late to stop him. And so off went the steam, production or no production, and the engine room force rushed to see what had become of Jimmie.

He had been hurled over the top of the big pulley to the floor below. They found him there, ruffled of wings, badly shaken up, and still dazed from his rough adventure, but physically uninjured. And every one gave thanks, as the mascot was borne back to his perch at the other end of the room, with the admonition never to try it again.

Jimmie, indeed, from that hour became a saddler and wiser bird. He has not tried the experience again; consequently the mill's sixty thousand spindles have revolved throughout the days without interruption. That one meeting with the whirling ropes was enough for the parrot.

Jimmie, however, condescended to descend from his perch again one day, when a cat, whose rightful residence is in the basement under the engine room, ventured within the parrot's domain. Jimmie evidently believes that in him alone is vested the right to act as mascot of the engine room. He drove the cat on the run.

Jimmie is the property of Mr. Sharp himself, and was brought by him to the mill. He is a macaw and observes the fashions of his species by having a very long tail and a strong, hooked bill. His plumage is brilliant. His original home was South America. Like other inhabitants of that part of the world, he is a revolutionist. His invasion of the region of belts and pulleys stopped the mill. The intrusion of the cat caused her ignoble retreat.

He is as polished in his manners as a Spaniard, and as flighty in his temper as a Venezuelan insurrectionist. He is, in fine, of the south, polite, hot tempered, sporting gorgeous raiment, and fearless of death.

Presence of Mind.

An Englishman in traveling through Ceylon was the guest of a dockyard official at Trincomalee.

"The dinner was excellent," he says, "but when it was about half over I was startled by hearing the wife of my host tell the native servant to place a bowl of milk on a deer-skin near her chair.

"Although she spoke as calmly as if giving an ordinary order, I knew at once there was a snake somewhere in the room, for they prefer milk to anything else. As a hasty movement might have meant certain death, we all sat like statues; but, for all that, my eyes were inspecting every nook and corner, with a peep under the table. However, it was not until the milk was placed on the deer-skin that the snake appeared. And then, to our amazement, a large cobra uncoiled itself from my hostess's ankle and glided towards the bowl, when, of ccurse, it was immediately killed.

"But just fancy the nerve of the woman, though she fainted when the thing lay dead on the floor. How many could have remained motionless in such circumstances?"

Tamed by a Threat.

"I will," she exclaimed— "I will not live with you another day!"

"You'll leave me, will you?" he calmly asked.

"Yes, I will."

"When?"

"Now—this minute!"

"I wouldn't, if I were you."

"But I will, and I defy you to stop me!"

"Oh, I sha'n't try to stop you," he quietly replied. "I will simply report to the police that my wife has mysteriously disappeared. They'll want your description, and I will give it. You wear No. 8 shoes; you have an extra large mouth; your nose turns up at the end; eyes rather on the glint; voice like a—"

"Wretch, you wouldn't dare do that!" she screamed.

"I will."

They glared at each other for a moment in silence. Then it was plain to see who was the victor.

Brave Fire Laddies.

A local automobile factory has a well-drilled fire corps, composed of factory employees. The corps had a chance to demonstrate its ability when a neighboring factory building burned.

The captain of the factory fire company called his men together after they had grabbed what they thought were fire extinguishers. As he started to give the order to turn the extinguishers on the roof, which began sparking from the neighboring fire and smoke, it was discovered every man [illegible]

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS ADOPT NEW STYLE

With the summer straw passing into the discard and with incidental dissatisfaction and indecision existing over the proper kind of fall lid, high school boys have adopted a new fashion the saving grace of which is that it does not look as bad as it might. The new style from the Fifth street fashion center is no hat at all. Whereas the tall stovepipe looking tiny brimmed ultra fashionable fall affair makes some fellows look like a cross between a full moon on a drunk and a bandmaster for a political parade and whereas the freakish wide brimmed dice makes most fellows look like Bowery merchants, the high school boys have figured it is up to them to set their own natural style. Next week will be the last for the summer straw and the man or boy who is seen with a panama of a board thatchpiece after that is just as like as not to get into embarrassing situations.

PROVERBS MOSTLY OLD

MAJORITY HAVE BEEN HANDED DOWN FOR CENTURIES.

Same Meaning Is Expressed In Varying Phrases Among Different Nations—Comments on Luck Are Most Expressive.

Many proverbs have come down to us from remote ages, and are common to all nations.

It is said that a king of Samos worked his slaves nearly to death in making a vineyard. This provoked one of them to prophesy that his master would never drink the wine. The king, being told of this, when the first grapes were produced took a handful, and, pressing the juice into a cup in the presence of the slave, derided him as a false prophet. "Many things happen between the cup and the lip," the slave replied.

Just then a shout was heard that a wild boar had broken into the vineyard. The king, without tasting, set down the cup, ran to meet it, and was killed in the encounter. Henceforth the words of the slave passed into a proverb.

From this Greek original came two French proverbs: "Between the hand and the mouth the soup is often spilt," and "Wine poured out is not swallowed." Neither is so near the original as our English, "There's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip."

It is curious to trace how similar ideas have taken root in different languages and the various modes of illustrating the same thought. For instance, one or two familiar proverbs in our own language. We say, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." The same idea is expressed by Italians when they say, "Better an egg today than a pullet tomorrow," and the French proverb is still more significant. "One here-it-is is better than two youshall-have-its." "Better a leveret in the kitchen than a wild boar in the forest," is the Livonian saying conveying the same meaning.

The proverbs on luck are numerous and expressive in all languages. In English we say, "It is better to be born lucky than rich." The Arabs convey the same idea in the apt proverb, "Throw him into the Nile and he will come up with a fish in his mouth," while the German says, "If he flung a penny on the roof a dollar would come back to him."

A Spanish proverb says, "God send you luck, my son, and little wit will serve you." There is a Latin adage, "Fortune favors fools," and it is to this Touchstone alludes in his reply to Jacques, "Call me not a fool till heaven hath sent me fortune."

The Germans say, "Jack gets on by his stupidity," and "Fortune and women are fond of fools." There is also a Latin proverb which shows that the converse of this holds good: "Fortune makes a fool of him whom she too much favors."

Some unlucky Englishman is responsible for the saying: "If my father had made me a hatter, when would have been born without heads," but this can scarcely be called original, as an unfortunate Arab, ages ago, declared, "If I were to trade in winding sheets no one would die."

"Misfortunes seldom come singly," has many equivalents in all languages. The Spaniards say, "Welcome, misfortune, if thou comest alone," and "Whither goest thou, misfortune? To where there is more?"

Called Halt on Lawyer.

Laura Hamilton tells of a funny courtroom episode which she saw one day while playing in the south some time ago.

A young lawyer had been appointed by the court to defend a man charged with larceny. In his argument to the jury he pleaded for the acquittal of his client. He told of his innocent boyhood days, of his good character, of his father, mother and brothers. In short, he launched forth into a family history.

The prisoner, an old darky, had listened with growing uneasiness to his counsel's plea, and as the attorney went on without a hint of stopping, the negro was driven to desperation. Jumping to his feet, he yelled to the court:

"I's guilty, yo' honah; I's guilty! De jury can't do no moh dan send me to jail fo' six months, but if dat fool lawyer doan stop, dey'll hang me fo' suah!"

Identified.

The two American war correspondents were gazing at the conflict when Kinkletop caught sight of a gallant officer leading a charge.

"His face is strangely familiar," he said. "That Greek lieutenant, I mean—"

"Yes," said Bilthers. "He used to run the boot-blacking stand in that barber shop over on Steenth avenue and Umtp-lph street."

[illegible] dashed madly past, and, forgetting himself under the excitement of the moment, turned and cried aloud to his advancing troops:

"Next! Shine!"

And the indomitable phalanx moved steadily up the hill, giving the enemy the worst polishing-off they had in all these war wars [illegible] Weekly.

Stop That Leakage

Benjamin Franklin says, "Beware of little expense; a small leak will sink a ship."

If you will stop the all-dangerous leakage in your household transactions (the nickels and dimes that go for useless luxuries) and start a savings account with this bank, you'll soon find your domestic ship on the high sea of prosperity.

I only requires a dollar to get started in the right way – and then by adding a small portion of your salary each pay day, you will be surprised at the results.

According to Mr. Foster the contract for the road will be let within a comparatively short time.

ACCIDENTS HAPPEN FROM TIGHT SKIRTS

The Pennsylvania railroad company has sent out notices to the effect that hereafter it will not be responsible for accidents due to women's dresses and adornment. Hobble skirts, high heeled shoes and freakish apparel have been responsible for a number of accidents according to the railroad's recent notice, especially of falls down station stairs and in boarding cars.

A number of notices have been issued by the company relative to the danger of high heeled shoes and tight skirts in traveling and with each of these accounts of the accidents caused by such apparel have been published. The last notice comes as an ultimatum. The company announces further that it will publish the names, ages and addresses of women who are injured through unsuitable clothing.
